Chris –

I found another Washington reference (attached to this email) which addresses one of OFIC's roads comment - "On the other hand, we are not aware of any scientific evidence indicating that habitat and water quality conditions have materially improved in Washington State due to implementation of their road maintenance and abandonment program."

The attached document states that "sediment delivery from forest roads has declined and that it will continue to decline as all of the RMAP's are completed by 2016."
